PREFACE

About Us

We are a group of IB students from Poland. This cooking book has been created as our CAS Project, with the aim of gathering a variety of gluten-free recipes

About the IB

International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme (IBDP) is an educational system designed to develop open-minded, knowledgeable and caring individuals that step into adulthood willing to make the world a better place. The core components of the IB are Extended Essay (EE), Theory of Knowledge (TOK) and CAS (Creativity, Activity, Service).

INTRODUCTION TO GLUTEN-FREE FOOD

Gluten

Gluten refers to proteins naturally occurring in wheat, rye, barley and triticale (a cross between rye and barley). It can be present in some oats - those that are processed with other foods that contain gluten (oats themselves don't contain gluten).

Celiac disease

Gluten is something the body isn't able to completely break down during digestion. As it makes its way to the small intestine, regular people can handle it. However, some are sensitive to gluten and would experience unpleasant symptoms such as bloating, diarrhoea, headache and skin rashes. Celiac disease is when a severe autoimmune response is triggered by the presence of gluten. It can cause serious damage to your small intestine.

Gluten-free certification

It is crucial that gluten sensitive and celiac diseased individuals avoid the consumption of gluten. Therefore, gluten-free products are labelled to indicate they are safe to be consumed by such people.

Cross-contamination

In order to prevent cross-contamination of gluten, make sure to thoroughly clean kitchen surfaces, utensils and cookware used previously to prepare gluten-containing foods.

Creamy Potato Soup with Vegetables

Ingredients:

- ▶ 500 ml of water
- ▶ 1 tsp of salt
- ▶ 80 g of carrots
- ▶ 200 g of celery branches
- ▶ 400 g of potatoes
- ▶ 150 g of leek
- ▶ 50 g of onions
- ▶ 20 g of butter
- ▶ 1 vegetable stock cube
- ▶ 125 g of sour cream, at least 30% fat
- ▶ Half a tsp of grinded pepper

Directions:

1. Pour the water into a pot and add salt. Cut the carrots, celery, 100 g of potatoes and 100 g of leek. Boil the water and cook the vegetables with its steam for 14 minutes.
2. After the vegetables are done, keep the water in the pot. Cut the onions and the rest of the leek and braise it with butter in a separate pan for 3 minutes.
3. Add the onions and leek to the water, along with the rest of the potatoes and cook for 18 minutes.
4. Put the ingredients into a blender, add sour cream and pepper. Mix for 30 seconds, intensifying the blending.
5. Put the soup back into the pot, add the previously prepared vegetables and cook for 2 minutes.
6. Serve while hot in a bowl or a deep plate.

Directions:

1. Pour water over lentils and cook for 20 minutes.

2. Slice carrots and garlic, cut onions into cubes. Peel tomatoes and grate them.

3. Heat up half a cup of olive oil, add the onion and fry until translucent.

4. Add in the carrots, garlic and bay leaves. Stew them on medium heat for 5 minutes and stir the whole time.

5. Add in the cooked lentils, grated tomatoes, oregano and a litre or less of water (as you prefer).
6. Bring to a boil and cook for 10 minutes more, add salt and pepper.

7. Serve with more olive oil, pour some vinegar and put feta on top.

Baked Pears with Camembert Cheese

Ingredients:

- ▶ 4 pears
- ▶ 2 whole camembert cheeses
- ▶ Delicate ham
- ▶ Nuts (Optional)

Directions:

1. Wash the pears and cut them in half, get rid of the seed nests
2. Cut the camembert cheeses in 1/8s and put two into each pear half.
3. Put the pears into the oven for 20 min.
4. Decorate the pears with delicate ham and nuts
